

Knoxville, Tenn., Airport

Dean Stone photo

1/17/83

Enroute to Etowah, TN to advise on refractory repair at
Jm Huber Co for Process Combustion Corp.

Jim

McGhee Tyson Airport, between the Great Smokies and Cumberlands among the TVA lakes, serves Knoxville, Maryville-Alcoa, and Oak Ridge. The modern facility, 10 miles south of Knoxville on U. S. 129 at Alcoa, is a port of entry and has an international trade mart. Airport is named for Navy Lieutenant Charles McGhee Tyson, Knoxville pilot killed over the North Sea in 1918 raid on a German submarine base.

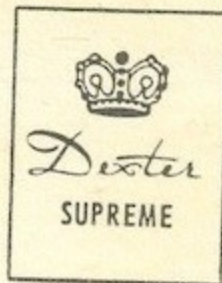

29147-D

© Dean Stone

dp

MADE BY DEXTER PRESS
WEST NYACK, NEW YORK

Pub. by Stonecraft, 1510 Scenic Drive, Maryville, Tenn. 37801

Post Card